FROM THE CHAIRMAN

Welcome to the officials, players and supporters of Hillingdon Borough for this Cherry Red Records Combined Counties League Division One match along with the referee Oliver Keil and his assistants Olivier Brownlea and Ryan Jones.

The ducks had the upper hand again on Saturday as most of the games in the League were postponed because of waterlogged pitches.

Not everyone appears to understand what I mean that the ducks have taken over when we have to call off a match because of the weather.

Our programme editor is convinced I am referring to Aylesbury United, who are nicknamed The Ducks. I am not going to comment any further on that one.....!

I had a quick look at how many games we still had to play at the beginning of March last season. With a total of 40 to play we still had 15 League games to fulfil. We all remember how difficult it was at the end of the season with a game almost every night of the week.

As we come into this clash against Hillingdon Borough, we have 14 games to play to complete the necessary 42 League matches plus we have a Middlesex County FA Premier Cup final.

Now that the heavens have been emptied, hopefully, we will have a clear run until the end of the season with few postponements.

We are, though, still having difficulties with our floodlights so we are grateful to our friends at Chalfont St Peter for allowing us to play tonight's game at their ground.

We also played our Esoteric Recordings Division One Cup tie against Spartans Youth at Mill Meadow last Wednesday. We drew 2-2 but went out 5-4 on the penalty-mark competition.

Enjoy tonight's game

VISITING THE BROOK

HILLINGDON BOROUGH

Hillingdon Borough are grateful to current Swansea City winger Yannick Bolasie for their survival.

On 17th January 2017, the club released a statement via their Twitter account that the club would be pulling out of the Southern League Division South & West due to monetary troubles.

However, Bolasie, who played for Hillingdon during the 2006-07 season, contacted the club, with the support of Everton, to help with the club's financial situation.

Hillingdon Borough survived and Bolasie stayed at Everton until 2021.

In recent times, Hillingdon Borough have had a difficult time in the Cherry Red Records Combined Counties League Division One.

They started this campaign well but have slipped down the table to second from bottom.

Hillingdon Borough was originally founded as Yiewsley in 1872 after a meeting of eight local businessmen who met at the instigation of Freddie Clinch, a baker of Fairfield Road, Yiewsley who provided the majority of the financial backing for the venture.

On 1st May 1964, the FA Council granted permission for Yiewsley to change their name to Hillingdon Borough FC. This was done to reflect the local government reorganisation in London that was to see the formation of the London Borough of Hillingdon on 1st April 1965.

We've often been told how football can learn from its oval ball cousins in rugby union, especially when it comes to on-the-field discipline.

While it's dragged its feet for years in introducing goal-line technology and then, of course, the dreaded VAR to bring it in line with the 21st century, FIFA chiefs do at least appear to have the game's best intentions at heart in attempting to protect its integrity as much as it possibly can.

This latest plan, to introduce blue cards and sin bins, has split the opinions of the powers at be game, not least among the game's elite players, managers and pundits who already have their tails in a spin with the controversies over VAR.

Sin-bins – essentially a 10-minute sending off for offences of dissent or cynical fouls - have been used successfully in rugby for more than 20 years but were only introduced in grassroots football, from Step Five and below, from the 2019-20 season in an attempt to improve levels of respect and fair play in the game.

By and large, the experiment has been a success with the round ball too with managers and players acclimatising pretty quickly to the new dynamic under close scrutiny from governing bodies keen to determine whether it could be used in the higher reaches of the game in the near future.

This week, NLP columnist Tony Incenzo - who has visited over 2,500 football grounds across the country and watches around 60 games a season at Steps Five and Six - went out and about asking referees at the level just what they think of the sin bin rule and whether they believe it could just work along the elite.

His first port of call was a pretty significant one too. Starting his career in the Northern Premier League, Keith Hackett went onto become one of the top referees in world football before retiring from the Premier League ranks in 1994.

Now president of the Northern Counties East League and Penistone Church FC, Hackett told him: "Sin bins are definitely a deterrent. Although there are many opportunities for referees to use this sanction but often they don't.

"Match officials allow their performances at times to be undermined by not delivering the punishment when it would be to their own benefit and that of the game. A sin-bin ruling not only penalises the individual but also the whole team.

"When I have seen it applied, I have not witnessed the affected team adopting delaying tactics until their player returns after the ten-minute period of temporary suspension. I also consider using a different coloured card – like the blue one suggested – might give greater clarity to supporters and other participants that the sin bin has been invoked."

Tony also spoke to David Stappleton, who referees in the Southern Combination League. He offered some firm views.

"I have experienced football with and without sin bins," said Stappleton. "I prefer the latter with an ability to use it to desired effect during a game. I believe a good referee communicates to the players. And accordingly, I can implement the sin bin or potential use of it. I try to use a stepped strategy when officiating.
